JOHN PAUL II STUDENTS HELP SENIOR CITIZENS

SAN ANTONIO, TEXAS. Mike Bennett, President and Chief Executive Officer of the Daughters of Charity Services of San Antonio announced today that Christmas came early to our neighborhood. Monday afternoon, students from John Paul II High School in Schertz, TX, delivered food, gifts, blankets and heaters to seventy-three senior citizens participating in Daughters of Charity Services' Adopt-a-Senior Christmas Program. Students collected items as part of their giving back to those in need. Several students commented that there are ample programs for children, but giving to older folks who would otherwise get nothing warmed their hearts!

This year Daughters of Charity Services Social Service department will be serving 330 seniors and 100 families. Each year we try to reach more seniors because more and more older men and women are facing financial difficulties.

Daughters of Charity Services of San Antonio operates centers providing medical care, dental care, health education, counseling and social services; with DePaul Children's Center and DePaul-Wesley Children's Center providing early childhood education programs. Daughters of Charity Services joins in partnership with low-income families by offering these services on a sliding scale fee, based on individual circumstances such as family income and size.
